

PAX unveils more Android Solutions and new Unattended Payment Terminal portfolio at its 2018 Worldwide Partner Conference in China

(PRC and Hong Kong, 30th April 2018) PAX Global Technology Limited (HKSE stock code: 00327.HK), one of the world's leading electronic payment terminals solutions providers, hosted its 2018 Worldwide Partner Conference in Shanghai last week, where the company unveiled, amongst other solutions, a much-anticipated range of self-service and unattended payment products.

Mr. Andrew Wu, Vice President of PAX, said, “With over 6.4 million terminals shipped last year and more and more new customers switching to PAX, the attendees to our annual China conference receive a unique insight as to the impressive development of the PAX terminal portfolio and are able to contribute their valuable feedback to our attentive R&D team with regard to our future product roadmap. We are excited and passionate about creating new business connections to our global clientele.”

Over 150 payment system integrators, financial institutions and industry leaders flew in to Shanghai from all around the world to see PAX unveil an ever more impressive ecosystem, which today includes an expanded portfolio of Android terminals alongside traditional Linux devices, the new IM-Series for unattended self-service environments such as petroleum, kiosks, vending, ticketing and parking, as well as the latest release of PAXSTORE, the payment industry's fastest growing open-platform software distribution marketplace.

Mr. Jack Lu, CEO of PAX, concluded, “This year’s conference was a huge success with our international partners, as they get to experience close-up the vibrancy of PAX as a company and of China itself. We will continue working closely with our many customers to accelerate the pace of innovation so that they can stay well ahead of the competition.”
